Fourth Liberty Loan

The campaign for the Fourth Liberty Loan will begin Sept. 28, and closes Oct. 19. The result of the loan will be watched with keen interest in Europe, not only by our associates in war against the Teutonic powers, but by our enemies. It will be regarded by them as a measure of the American people's support of the war.

The Germans know full well the tremendous weight and significance of popular support of the war; of the people at home backing up the Army in the field. As the loan succeeds, our enemies will sorrow; as it falls short, they will rejoice. Every dollar subscribed will help and encourage the American soldiers and hurt and depress the enemies of America.

The loan will be a test of the loyalty and willingness of the people of the United States to make sacrifices compared with the willingness of our soldiers to do their part. There must be and there will be no failure by the people to measure up to the courage and devotion of our men in Europe. Many of them have given their lives; shall we at home withhold our money? Shall we spare our dollars while they spare not their lives?

Registration is again open for the November election. Any citizen entitled to vote who has not registered this year, should do so at once.

Next Monday is California's birthday—68 years a State of the Union. The local public school will be closed, and the postoffice will maintain Sunday hours.

D. L. James, who has been summering at Carmel Highlands with his wife and son, has returned to his home at Kansas City. They have purchased a building site at the Highlands.

Mrs. Mary Wild and her three daughters have established their residence here. They are from Newark, N. J. Mrs. Wild is the mother of Mrs. Harry Turner.

Mrs. Frank Powers has heard from her mother, Mrs. Theo Duffey, after her safe arrival in New York with Ann Seaton. Miss Seaton visited her father for a week at De Winton, the Seaton's new country place at Greenwich, Conn., and then Mrs. Duffey saw her packed again for a month's visit in Maine. By that time Mrs. E. T. Seaton (Grace Gallatin) will probably have returned from her successful mission in France.

The first dramatic reading at the Book Shop will be given tonight. Mr. Herbert Heron will read Bernard Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra."

Cameron Waite, nephew of Mrs. J. E. Beck, who was a school boy here for about a year, and who went to France with the Pennsylvania section of the National Army, is reported "seriously wounded in action (August 7)."

P. D. Cronley, of the San Jose High School vocational education department, has been appointed a staff instructor of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. He will assist in training men as yard instructors in ship building, and will be located about San Francisco bay.

Miss Helen M. Baker has returned to Santa Barbara with her brother. The latter's health, undermined by shell-shock, is much improved.

Miss Margaret N. Clark has assumed her duties as librarian of the Carmel Library, succeeding Mrs. Sydney Yard, who will soon leave here to make her residence at Palo Alto.

Mrs. George Collis and daughter are returning to Pasadena, stopping over in San Francisco and Modesto on the way.

Purchasers of Third Liberty Loan Bonds may now obtain the certificates at the banks through which purchase was made in Monterey.

Mrs. F. Duveneck has departed for the East on a matter of business. She will return here almost immediately.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Murphy and daughter of Los Angeles are occupying the recently purchased Gray place at Pebble Beach. Miss Sue Sinnott of San Jose is a guest.

Rev. S. C. Thomas will lecture Sunday morning on "New Light on New Testament from Archaeological Discoveries in Egypt—The most Sensational Discovery of Centuries."

Miss Agnes Munt of Ben Lomond has been a guest of Mother Carrington.

Mr. and M. Gustav Lammester are with us again. They drove down from Palo Alto for a three week's stay.

After a fortnight in Berkeley, the Shinn family, who left yesterday, will proceed to Pasadena.

Make it 100. Uncle Dee! Carmel's Grand Old Man, Delos Goldsmith, was 90 years old Tuesday. He was happy, surrounded by his friends, and a good cigar made his contentment complete.

The Pine Cone has a well equipped job printing plant.

Interesting Letter to Hand From France

Mrs. Ernest T. Seaton, (Miss Grace Gallatin), who sailed for France some months ago to establish a number of convalescent hospital units, has sent the following letter to her sister, Mrs. Frank H. Powers.

Hotel de Castiglione
12 Rue de Castiglione
Paris, Aug. 6, 1918

My dear sister Jane:

Since writing you on my arrival, I've been wanting to write you of all the things that are happening to me. At once I wrote to your Mme. Laudet, who promptly came to call and has proved very charming. I lunch with her and she with me and she has written twice for me to Alber Salivet, your protegee in the French army. So far we have heard nothing, but there has not been time. Affairs here move slowly and undoubtedly he has long since been evacuated from that hospital, but eventually Mme. Laudet will hear, and if it does not happen before I leave, I shall leave the lovely woolly things with her to give him herself.

I want you to know that I had to leave my steamer trunk in London, and brought the woolly things by hand; so that was devotion to your cause. But I do not often wear the clothes I did bring, as I am always in uniform during the day and frequently at night. The uniform of Le Bien-etre de Blesse is French blue with silver buttons with a cross on them, and a very becoming berri with a stiff brim.

I have had some hard work to establish the unit here properly but it is beginning to come—order out of chaos.

The gathering of material for the book has been most interesting.

My letters from Secretary Lansing (whose sisters have just been decorated over here with the French war cross for heroism under fire) and Secretary Baker have resulted in General Tasker Bliss calling on me himself and sending to call the next in command, who has made things very pleasant. And yesterday General Pershing gave me an interview in the beautiful Ogden Mills Hotel. He was only in Paris four hours, so I was quite honored. I found a most delightful personality, charming yet virile.

Have also been most fortunate in meeting the Dames aux Faubourg, who are doing wonderful things. The Marquise de Montebello, wife of the former Ambassador to Russia, has been especially helpful, taking me about in her car and asking me to luncheon, dinner, etc., where I have met women who are working at the most extraordinary tasks.

These women of the old nobility, always in black (they are in mourning) carry a brave face. They work as nurses, secretaries and bookkeepers, meeting all classes of poilus, playing the piano for them, serving them coffee, making garments for them, carrying bags, bundles, children; serving food, working like slaves at the stations, often making beds, even disinfecting after removing lice from the soldiers' head and garments.

It is marvelous the service of these dignified, sheltered women with the smiling lips and the sad eyes; and their courtesy is perfection. Every day some one of them comes to take the strangers (which includes me) to see her particular work, and such work, the organization and executive ability shown, even the Repatries for the Refugees for the children of the married, for the tubercular, for the convalescent, for the soldiers on leave. The women conduct them in every Arrondissement. Clubs really, where soldiers can go and all are welcome—are given cigarettes, coffee, books, cigars, writing material, billiards, and musical instruments, and a vestiaire where needed clothing is given out.

A little French Marquise is qualifying for the motor unit. Her family fortunes are at Lille, and probably gone forever. The Germans occupied her chateau and that of her aunt, destroyed the pictures, ripped with bayonets the priceless upholstery, and did unspeakable things in the aunt's bedroom, even opened bureau drawers and defiled them.

I have been to within six miles of the front, where one of my couriers was bombarded, at the field hospital. Am going again Monday.

Yesterday the Big Bertha started up again and a shell dropped within a half block of my office, destroying a shop. The Boulevard St Germain is a favorite quarter for dropping shells. Yesterday a shell took on the head of an American woman and scattered the taxi to bits, all very near me. It is a curious situation I can assure you. The Big Bertha has been busy again today, but not near me.

It is a strange world we live in. Above all, tell the women you work with in the Red Cross to keep on with all the dressings they can make. Our boys need thousands of them.

Your loving sister Grace

FIGHTING WITH FOOD

By DR. RAY LYMAN WILBUR

President of Stanford University.

You and I have a problem to face that we have not yet faced. We went into this war with the idea that we could just add this war to our other activities, give a little for Red Cross, subscribe from our surplus a little for bonds, send a few men over for a graceful gesture, help the Allies a little if it could be done without any great sacrifice on our part. What happened? In a little over half a year what have we seen? The oil fields and wheat fields of Roumania have come under German domination. Russia has gone out of the war. We have seen Russia cut up, a piece carved out of her territory greater than all Germany before the war began. We see Germany in control of Odessa. We see her in control of the Gulf of Riga. We see her organizing Finland. We see her start the greatest military offensive in the history of the world, crashing 30 miles through the defenses that have been built up in four years.

Since the birth of Christ there has never been such a momentous time as there is today. And yet we drift along today, not getting thoroughly into the war.

You live in the most critical period of all human history. You take part in it; and up to this time our part has not been the full part of a great Nation, supporting democracy in the world.

Last winter the people in this country were talking peace. Peace based on what? Strikes in Germany. The story of these strikes came to us from Berlin headquarters. A gas wave of peace talk went over this country. An officer in one of the cantonnements told me it cost the soldiers under his command a month of time because they thought the war was over and they were not going to France. They lost interest.

At that very time Germany, by Russia's collapse, had 3,500,000 less men against her than in March 1917. It was our job to take Russia's place. Instead we talked peace.

In Freedom's Name.

What brought us into this war? We stood by the in-asker of Belgium. We had stood for the breach of neutrality and for all the German atrocities and brutalities—and remember that German warfare was just as harsh the third day of the war as you know it today. We stood for it.

We stood for the Lusitania, and nothing worse has happened in the history of man than that, and nothing worse ever will happen. We stood for the Sussex, also. What brought us into the war?

Germany started the submarine war to keep us from helping the Allies. Germany said to us, "You can send one ship a week along a certain lane, painted a certain way with stripes and bars, to a certain English port to arrive on a certain Wednesday." Then we went to war. Why? Because our eyes were opened.

We began to see that the German Emperor, claiming the divine right of kings, master of the greatest military force the world had ever seen, was the champion of autocracy. We saw the United States, organized by Washington and saved by Lincoln—the home of democracy—threatened with destruction. So we went to war.

But we did not as a people go to war. We began to pick out our boys to die, but we did not enter the struggle. We are just now settling down to the war, though this is the critical year. England and France, fighting to the last man, demanded the help of our manhood. We had not the ships to send a decisive number. We had not the trained men to send. Since then more than a million have gone overseas, more are going. Their splendid bravery, their high courage make us justly proud. We must not ask them to solve a problem far beyond their strength. We must back them up promptly and in every way. It is necessary for us to maintain our associates in the war, until we are fully ready. Whether we shall be a great democracy, fighting our way to final victory, or the most despised, the most hated Nation on earth, depends on what the civilian population of America does now.

Community Honor Roll To the Residents of Carmelo Precinct:

The Committee on Community Honor Roll and Standard desires that those who have husband, sons, or daughters in service, to kindly furnish the name in full, date of entry, and branch of service—naval, marine, infantry, cavalry, artillery, aviation, engineering, hospital, Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., K. of C. It is essential that accurate data be obtained.

Address communication to Dr. C. A. McCollom, Carmel.

THE NICKEL A WEEK WOOL FUND

What is it? It is a method of financing the wool requirements of our Carmel Chapter.

One hundred subscribers will give the Chapter its wool for knitting free of all other demands upon its funds.

How does it work? It's the simplest thing ever. You are given 52 small numbered envelopes. Once a week put a nickel or five pennies in an envelope and drop it in the box on the workroom door. That's all.

Any Red Cross worker will take your name and give or bring in the envelopes with full directions.

This is a chance for all to help in a way that won't be felt, men, women and children. The winter is coming on and our boys over there will have to face a set of conditions in the open, often without shelter of any kind, that the arm chair patriots have no conception of. If every one who takes a packet of envelopes will get one additional subscriber, the thing is done.

Lecture on Russia

A keenly appreciative audience greeted Alexander Kaun at the first of a series of lectures on Russia, given Monday evening at the residence of Mrs. J. D. Gray.

Mr. Kaun has the rare art of holding his audience from the first to the last word, a lucidity of style and grasp of his subject that is very convincing. Those fortunate enough to hear him were very enthusiastic.

The speaker dwelt mainly on the historical development of the Russian empire and of the autocratic power of the Tsars.

Next Monday he will analyze the class composition in the Russian nation, and will discuss the status of the peasantry, the nobility, the workingman, the capitalist and the "intelligencia."

The lectures will hereafter be given at Arts and Crafts Hall.

The Dim, Dim Future

"When Ireland is free."

That's what we used to say to express our doubt of anything ever transpiring, and that seems to fit the prospect of any immediate work being done on our miserable streets.

This conclusion is arrived at after listening to the discussion between citizens and officials at Tuesday night's monthly meeting of the City Trustees. There seems to be no unity of plan or of desire.
Some want clay, other macadam;
some want culverts, gutters and retaining walls, some do not; some are so patriotic that they desire no street work whatever.

Trustee Peter Taylor occupied the chair in the absence of President Fraser, and there were a number of citizens on hand.

A complaint about the untidy sand dunes, made so by picnic parties, will receive the attention of the board.

L. S. Slevin brought up the matter of the necessity of house numbers. This too, will be looked into.

Ordinance No. 28, establishing the tax rate, $1 on each $100, was passed to print.

A complaint box for the Marshal is to be placed near the entrance to the City Hall.

Our New "Book Shop"

Each day since its opening last week numbers of our own people and of sojourners in Carmel have visited Herbert Heron's artistic Book Shop.

This venture will be a permanent institution because it has been established in a spirit of community service, and has for its creative motive the fostering of Carmel's artistic ideals in literature, drama, painting.

To Carmel come at one time or another the shining lights in the world of art. We meet these people; we wish to acquire a definite knowledge of what they have accomplished on canvas, for the printed page, or in the drama.

Mr. Heron's establishment is the only book shop in this county. There, too, one may see the works of our resident and visiting artists.

All who have entered the new store are charmed with its simple beauty, and we who are here always and those who come only for a time are glad to know the Book Shop is here.
